DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 2, and 6-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mendez et al. (U.S. Pat. 5,612,671) in view of Niekerk et al. (U.S. Pat. 6,463,798) and further in view of Nada (U.S. Pat. 6,522,960).

Regarding claim 1: Mendez et al. disclose a method of learning tire pressure transmitter ID comprising a plurality of tire location and a memory (col. 3, lines 19-24) having an ignition signal (col. 3, lines 25-51), wherein each transmitter identification is associated with one of the plurality of the tire location (col. 2, lines 1-4). Mendes et al. disclose entering a learn mode in response to the ignition signal (col. 3, lines 25-58). Niekerk et al. teach entering a learn mode in several ways, e.g., a vehicle turn is detected, only when the vehicle is started, or from a combination of one or more thereof (col. 4, lines 37-51). Mendez et al. and Niekerk et al. do not show entering a learn mode in response to the ignition signal and the brake condition signal as claimed. However, Nada disclose vehicle with power source system mounted thereon, power source system controller, method of controlling power source system, and method of controlling start of such vehicle including the use of a combination of the brake signal and ignition signal (col. 7, lines 40-54). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the teachings of Niekerk et al., Mendez et al., and Nada because entering the learn mode by using the brake condition signal in addition to the ignition signal would prevent errors.

Regarding claim 2: Niekerk et al. disclose entering the learn mode after a predetermined number of transitions (col. 4, lines 37-41).

Regarding claim 6: Mendez et al. disclose a tell-tale display 22 (col. 2, lines 46-52).

Regarding claim 7: Mendez et al. disclose activating a timer in response to entering the learn mode (col. 4, lines 49-60).

Regarding claim 8: Mendez et al. disclose a first transmitter identification signal is received, resetting the timer and generating a second display signal indicative of a second tire location (col. 1, lines 59-63, and col. 3, lines 2-6).

Regarding claim 9: Mendez et al. disclose receiving a second transmitter identification signal (col. 1, lines 59-67).

Regarding claim 10: Mendez et al. disclose associating the first identification signal with a first tire location and a second identification signal with a second tire location (col. 2, lines 39-41).

Regarding claim 11: Mendez et al. disclose a spare location (col. 2, lines 4-6).

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 3-5 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

4. Claims 12-19 are allowed.
